

Our Approach to Training

Open Enrollment Courses:

- Six Sigma training courses that are open to the public
- Key benefits:
  - Participants are released from their day-to-day work environment, which allows them to focus specifically on learning the new quality improvement methods presented
  - Cross-learning occurs between program participants through:
    - Hands-on exercises performed in groups
    - Project status reports shared in-class by participants throughout the training course
  - Rates vary by type of training course (see our program offerings for a schedule of upcoming courses)
  - Discounts are available for multiple registrations from the same organization (see our program offerings for available discounts)

Contract Rates:

- For companies planning to send small waves of employees to attend open enrollment courses over an extended period of time
- Rates negotiated on a contract basis (please contact us for more information)

On-Site Training

- Six Sigma training courses delivered at the location of your choice (available for all training levels &ndash; see our list of program offerings)
- For groups of participants of the same organization
- Rates negotiated on a contract basis (please contact us for more information)
- This option is currently available for our Six Sigma Overview and Green Belt training.

Training for Individuals

- Our certificate program is recommended for individuals who would like to obtain Six Sigma training independent of their current organization.
